Pastor Roland Dell felt Jesus beside him after suffering a heart attack and being rushed to the hospital in an ambulance. His story of that experience is fascinating.

Roland Dell was just an ordinary kid who enjoyed playing with his friends and exploring as most little boys do. Born on January 6, 1959, in Baltimore, Maryland, he attended Towson High School. That was the end of his formal education, however, because he suffered from dyslexia and ADD. He was, in fact, one of the first to be in the pioneering experiment in phonetics to treat dyslexia at Johns Hopkins University. Although he was unable to study like most people, he was curious and ambitious and wanted to better himself...little did he know that he would have an experience that would bring him into contact with Jesus Christ.

Coast Guard

In 1980 he enlisted in the Coast Guard but his tenure there was brief. Reduction of forces under the Reagan Administration found him without a job after two years. He volunteered on the lightship "Chesapeake," but continued his life of drinking and carousing. At one point he prayed to God that He would lead him to a career. He was not a churchgoer...he went only once while working on the "Chesapeake."

Street Ministry

For six years Roland worked at a street ministry in Baltimore which was run by the Rev. Michael

I told God, if he allowed me to live that I would no longer keep my mouth shut about him! This all occurred on my 20 years of military service, two days after my ordination.
